

REEL ADVENTURES: The Stuff of Legends

Calgary to Banff, Kananaskis Country and Cowboy Country

There's just something about the Rocky Mountains that's pure breath-snatching, awe-invoking majesty. Albertans would like to think Hollywood could shoot any movie against their treasured range of peaks, valleys and rolling foothills and produce an Oscar. Perhaps. But it's the Western genre that puts the landscape to its best use.

Dress Brad Pitt in cowboy duds and put him on a horse and you've got a movie; set that movie anywhere between Calgary and Banff and you've got movie magic. The three (Pitt, horse and Alberta) have starred in two memorable films, The Assassination of Jesse James by the Coward Robert Ford (2007) and Legends of the Fall (1994). Add to that Kevin Costner's Open Range (2002) and you've hit a trifecta of celluloid scenery.

Jesse James (Pitt) recounts the final days of America's Old West outlaw and his death at the hands of Robert Ford (Casey Affleck), who shot him in the back. Legends of the Fall is the drama of a powerful Colorado ranching family dealing with the interferences of life, love and world war. Open Range tells of cowpokes (Costner and Robert Duvall) on the open range and their confrontation with a greedy cattle baron (Michael Gambon).

Fortunately, they've left behind a trail we can follow, so be ready to saddle up tomorrow morning.

Calgary

Calgary is best known for its majestic, awe-inspiring scenery central to the imagery and imagination evoked by the frontier of the untamed west. Yet Calgary's remarkably diverse geography makes it a very popular setting for a vast range of productions. From the deserts of Afghanistan, to the battlefields of feudal Japan, to a trendy restaurant in Beverly Hills, to New York City, Calgary is a chameleon able to play a wide spectrum of roles; summer, winter, spring or fall.

Tonight we're bunking down in one of Calgary's premiere hotels, the Fairmont Palliser adjacent to the Calgary Tower, where 250 Calgary residents were used as extras in the ballroom scene in Jesse James. Ang Lee, Brokeback Mountain director, also stayed here during his visits to Calgary.

The Palliser is connected by skywalks to the Telus Convention Centre, the Calgary Tower and the world-class Glenbow Museum. If you're here in July, the famous Calgary Stampede is only blocks away.

We can take in Heritage Park before we hit the road, although it would be easy to spend a full day lost in its quiet history, uniquely studied from a horse-drawn carriage. Or, if you prefer a little less tranquility, jump aboard the park's authentic steam locomotive when it stops at the station and ride around the park on an "iron horse." To reach the park from the Palliser, take Macleod Trail southbound to Heritage Drive westbound.

Situated on a sprawl of land on the shore of the Glenmore Reservoir at 1900 Heritage Drive S.W., Heritage Park includes an authentic period town crafted from buildings found across southern Alberta. Part of Jesse James, the life of the American gunslinger and his eventual murder by a trusted friend, was filmed here, not surprisingly considering the authenticity that went into each building, street and artifact.

After you enjoy Heritage Park, and if you're thirsty for a cold one, Ranchman's at 9615 Macleod Trail S.W. will take you into Brokeback Mountain (2005) territory; it's the country-and-western bar where Jack Twist meets Lureen.

Calgary to Banff

As you head west on Highway 1, consider that more than 20 standing movie sets in the province are located west of Calgary. The film sets have been built and maintained on private property for more than 40 western productions, including:

Legends of the Fall, Lonesome Dove, Shanghai Noon, Open Range and Jesse James.

Morley

At the juncture of Highway 1 and Highway 22, as we head to Morley, which is 29 km away, you have your choice of 2 routes: Highway 1 (the Trans Canada), or north on Highway 22 for 13 km to Cochrane, then west on Highway 1A.

Trans-Canada to Morley

Staying on the Trans-Canada on our way to Banff, we'll cut through Morley on the Stoney Indian Reserve, the Rockies already rising in the distance. If the scenery already looks familiar, remember Open Range was filmed near here, as was Legends. And there's a touch of Brokeback Mountain here, too, if you recall some of the scenes involving sheep pens.

Alternate Morley Route Via Cochrane

If you take Highway 1A, you'll go through Cochrane, a gem of a town of 15,000. As you drive in from Calgary, you'll come down a hill overlooking the entire town, the Bow River and the Rocky Mountains to the west.

Cochrane, decorated in an Old West theme, is home to Mackay's Ice Cream, for more than 50 years a visitor favourite with its popular homemade product. Cochrane is situated at the base of the Big Hill in the Bow River Valley, 20 minutes from Calgary and less than an hour from Banff. With spectacular vistas of the rolling foothills and majestic Rocky Mountains, the town combines a proud western heritage with all modern conveniences required for a great vacation. The Cochrane Ranche Historic Site is worth a visit. Accessible year-round, this ranch was the largest in Canada in the late 19th century and has a fascinating history to discover. Guided tours, educational interpretive programs and special events are available.

Continuing along Highway 1A to Morley, we're right into Legends territory. The First World War scenes were filmed here using hundreds of locals and a few Canadian Forces soldiers to assist. The scenes were filmed in two weeks with historically accurate trenches and an encampment.

Nakoda Lodge, located on Highway 1A 35 km east of Canmore or 62 km west of Cochrane, on Chief Hector Lake, is well worth a look. Several highly rated German westerns, In the Valley of the Wild Roses, have been shot on the lakeshore.

The Stoney Reserve is also where much of Open Range was filmed. The movie tells the story of open-range ranchers and their battle with an unscrupulous cattle baron, played by British actor Michael Gambon. A fully functioning frontier town of 1882 was built for nearly $2 million, featuring saloons, banks, stores, houses, stables and a jail. Kevin Costner was a guest of Stoney Chief Ernest Wesley at the Golden Leaf Powwow in Morley in September 2002.

The Stoney, or Nakoda, nation has been culturally tied to the Rocky Mountains for close to 400 years. Known in their own language as the Rocky Mountain Sioux, the Nakoda are believed to have migrated west from the plains to escape smallpox epidemics.

Near Exshaw, 20 minutes east of Canmore on Highway 1A, you'll find Rafter Six Ranch, site of many film projects including River of No Return. The TV movie How the West Was Fun was also shot here starring the Olsen Twins, as was the TV hit Grizzly Adams. To find the ranch, follow the Trans-Canada Highway to Exit 114 after Kananaskis Flats and turn left at the stop sign onto South Ranch Road. Walt Disney had a lengthy association with the ranch, and the cabin built for him still bears the filmmaker's name.

Morley to Canmore

On the Stoney Reserve, 16 km west of Morley on Highway 1A, you'll find the location for the Ludlow family's home, built especially for Legends, the saga of competing interests between brothers for the love of a beautiful woman, set over several years, in the American West. The house where Anthony Hopkins, Aidan Quinn, Julia Ormond and the aforementioned Pitt played out their relationships is gone. Continuing on Highway 1A takes you out of the four-lane rat race and on a slower, scenic pace to Canmore. Alternatively you may drive to Canmore via Highway 1.

Just south and west of Canmore is Goat Creek. Production crews on Jesse James spent $1 million creating Creede, Colo. Speaking of Canmore, the area around the town was featured in 1997's The Edge, starring Hopkins, Alec Baldwin and a grizzly. It's also hosted Death Hunt (1991), Grizzly Falls (1999), Mystery, Alaska (1999), and X2 X-Men United (2003). The pilot for Everwood (2002) starring Stacey Keach was filmed here, with Canmore's main street serving as Everwood's main drag, and a North of 60 Mystery was filmed nearby.

Open Range co-star Robert Duvall frequented the Crazy Weed Kitchen, located at 626 Main Street. It's open daily at noon.

Canmore is on the edge of Kananaskis Country, about which we'll talk more later. It's truly a year-round concern, with a thriving arts community, golf, hiking, mountain-biking in summer and cross-country skiing in the winter (its Nordic centre was the site of several 1988 Olympic Winter Games events). In October, bring the binoculars and watch the annual eagle migration.

For something a little daring, try the Canmore Caverns Cave Tour, on which you'll descend into a cave on Grotto Mountain. Experienced guides will interpret the fascinating natural history of the cave.

Banff National Park is a stone's throw west on the Trans-Canada, centered around the world-famous mountain community of Banff, a vacation destination in its own category.

Hollywood discovered this area more than 60 years ago, filming the backdrop to Spring Time in the Rockies in 1942.

Those same Rockies were turned into an Austrian landscape six years later for The Emperor Waltz with Bing Crosby. In 1950, the film Saskatchewan was shot here as Hollywood added mountains to the Wheat Province's flat landscape.

Reality returned in 1952 with River of No Return. It was at the Fairmont Banff Springs Hotel that star Marilyn Monroe convalesced after injuring her leg while filming the adventure flick. The hotel is a tourist destination in its own right, a return to the great days of railroad palaces set amid scenery that is both mystical and rugged.

There is much for the Banff visitor to do, whether it's wandering the passageways of the Banff Springs, gleaning treasures from downtown boutiques, or exploring the outdoors, easily done year-round.

Ride to the top of Sulphur Mountain to experience a bird's eye view of six mountain ranges. The Banff Gondola is located five minutes from the townsite, on the mountain's shoulder. You'll be whisked up the mountain in eight minutes to sights impossible to experience anywhere else, 2,281m (7,486 ft) above sea level.

When it's time to warm up, the Hot Springs await with the amenities of a

Kananaskis Circle Tour

Note:

1. This circle route works just as effectively after you've seen Canmore and Banff, on your way east back to Calgary.
2. This circle tour includes highways that are not open in winter.

A second trip out of Calgary is to beautiful Kananaskis Country, which came into sharp relief in Brokeback Mountain. You can easily make the Kananaskis a separate holiday destination, but here's an easy circle tour that can be done in a day or two, depending on your pace.

West of Calgary about 20 km, you'll turn south at Highway 22, known as the Cowboy Trail, and head for Bragg Creek. There's plenty of natural beauty here, highlighted by Elbow Falls at Bragg Creek Provincial Park, about eight km west of the townsite on Highway 66. It's here you add Brokeback Mountain to your movie holiday.

Brokeback Mountain is actually a composite of three mountain sites: the majestic Mount Loughheed near Canmore and Fortress and Moose mountains in the Kananaskis. Moose Mountain, flanking the town of Canmore, is the one climbed by the movie's two key characters and their herd of sheep; it's very scaleable. As you come out of Bragg Creek on Highway 66, look for Paddy's Flat Campground. Just past the sign you'll find a dirt road that will take you seven kms, halfway up the mountain, the most easterly of the Rockies near Calgary. The average hiker can do the round trip to the peak in about six hours.

Enjoy the Bragg Creek Walk, a pleasant, hour-long stroll from the Provincial Park into the town. The pathway connects the commercial and community centre of Bragg Creek with the surrounding natural world. With its connection to Kananaskis Country, Bragg Creek is ideal for all outdoor activities.

Back on Highway 22 you can hit three small towns and some of the locales for Jesse James:

Millarville, 50 km south and east of Bragg Creek, has a famous Farmers' Market each Saturday morning from mid-June to the end of September; the Millarville Races (horses) at the end of June; the Flower Festival at the end of July and the Millarville Art Market in mid-October.

Turner Valley (a skip south of Millarville) is home to the Turner Valley Gas Plant, a National Historic Site, the only surviving one of its kind in Canada showing pioneering technology in the oil and gas industry. Tours are available during the summer.

Finally, Longview. The Memories Inn in Longview served Clint Eastwood his breakfast every day during the filming of Unforgiven; it's now closed, but you'll find great coffee at the Navajo Mug, owned by Ian Tyson, Canadian recording star and real-life cowboy.

In these parts, the main industry is ranching, and several ranches play roles in Alberta movies, especially Open Range, which located its cattle drives on the Nicoll Ranch at Jumping Pound Creek and the Turner and Hughes ranches, both southwest of Longview.

It's time to head west again from Longview, this time on Highway 541, a route that becomes Highway 40 and takes you through the heart of the Kananaskis.

A few kilometres out of Longview, on your right-hand side, you'll spot Fireguard Coulee on the Kinnear Ranch, used for the opening scenes in Open Range; it's camera-ready art. A few kilometres farther brings you to an area the Open Range crews used for several weeks of filming, including cattle-driving scenes and most of the open range shots. This is private property, so permission must be obtained before entering the ranch.

For another hour or so, you're going to pass spectacular beauty that doesn't require Hollywood to make it world famous. You'll be hitting three contiguous provincial parks (Peter Lougheed, Spray Valley and Bow Valley Wildland) on the left and Elbow-Sheep Wildland Provincial Park on the right. Watch for wildlife along this route: grizzlies can sometimes be spotted roaming the hillsides, and herds of bighorn sheep seem to be on their own mountain holidays.

At the Peter Lougheed Provincial Park Visitors Centre, you'll find the trail to Lower and Upper Kananaskis lakes. It is on the shore of Upper Kananaskis Lake where Jack tells Ennis in Brokeback Mountain: "I wish I knew how to quit you."

Eventually, you'll come to Kananaskis Village, a tourist mecca where, in the winter at Nakiska, you can ski Mount Allan, one of the sites of the 1988 Winter Olympics. Fewer than 20 kms farther, you'll rejoin the Trans-Canada Highway at Seebe, about 15 minutes east of Canmore. We have one more stop to make here to see the cliffs from which Ennis and Jack jumped into the river in Brokeback. From the Trans-Canada, take Seebe Exit 114A, pass by the "Leaving Park" sign, cross the bridge and take a hard right to the first gate. From here, walk slightly more than a kilometre through Seebe to a second gate, and walk 200 metres to the top of the hill, cross the Texas gate and turn left. Pass two orange posts and follow the road to the left down to the Bow River.

Cowboy Country

If you're looking for a pleasant day trip close to Calgary, here's an interesting circuit to give you a taste of cowboy country. We'll head from Calgary to the international equestrian site of Spruce Meadows, then to Okotoks, Black Diamond, High River, Blackie, Dinton, Carseland and Cheadle.

Spruce Meadows may seem designed for horse lovers a bit more upscale than your average wranglers, but it's a friendly place nonetheless. Spruce Meadows is home to several show-jumping events each summer, drawing riders and their mounts from around the world. Tom Selleck took wife Jillie and daughter Hannah to Spruce Meadows during breaks in filming Monte Walsh. The movie, starring Isabella Rosselini, Keith Carradine and William Devane, was about an aging cowboy who realizes the West he loves is coming to an end in the late 19th century. To find Spruce Meadows, about 30 minutes from downtown Calgary, head south on Macleod Trail, then west on Spruce Meadows Trail (Highway 22X/Marquis of Lorne Trail) for two kms and watch for signs.

Once you're finished with the ponies, retrace your steps slightly to Highway 2A and follow it south to Okotoks and nearby Black Diamond, west on Highway 7. Viva Las Nowhere was filmed here starring The Wonder Years' narrator Daniel Stern, Patricia Richardson, James Caan, Lacey Kohl and Andy Maton as Alberta stood in for Kansas. Caan plays a country music star and Stern is a country music wannabe in this musical-turned-mystery movie.

Some 20 km south of Okotoks and just off Highway 2 is High River, birthplace of former prime minister Joe Clark. But another "Clark" made the town famous: Clark Kent. Superman III, with the late Christopher Reeve, was filmed here in 1983, when scouts found Clark's perfect boyhood home at 410-414 Fifth St. SE. Ironically, when the owners heard the house had been chosen for the film, they spruced it up, all for nothing: the renovations had to be undone because the art director wanted it as it was.

Heartland, CBC's family drama series, used several High River locales. Vespucci's at 111 Third Ave. SW and the Pekisko Trading Company at 114 supplied costumes, while filming took place in buildings along the downtown avenue. The saddle store "Maggies" (formerly called Bradley's) was used in the series, as was the front of the Ice Cream place. The series chronicles the comings and goings of the Fleming family on a ranch that specializes in healing abused or neglected horses.

The Ron Clark Story (2006) starring Matthew Perry as a small-town teacher who takes on a tough inner-city school, used High River's historic Wales Theatre and CIBC building.

Two High River schools - Spitzee and Senator Riley - were used for Caitlin's

Way, (31 episodes, 2000-2002) a modern drama series on YTV in Canada and Nickelodeon in the United States. The series follows 13-year-old orphan Caitlin Seeger as she shuffles through the foster-home system before being sent to the country home of her second cousins in Montana. Also used in Caitlin's Way is Evelyn's Memory Lane at 118 Fourth Ave. SW.

High River was also used in Carolina Moon (2007), a made-for-TV thriller based on Nora Roberts' novel. Scenes were filmed at Vespucci's at 111 Third Ave. SW; the town cemetery on Third Avenue, and historic Wallace House at 145 MacLeod Trail SW.

Moondance Alexander (2007) with Kay Panabaker and Don Johnson, was filmed in the Okotoks area, and also used the High River Cemetery. The film, based on a true story, is about a teenaged girl who finds herself with the help of a horse.

East of High River, just off Highway 23, is our next stop, Blackie, home to a Brokeback Mountain (2005) moment at the corner of Railway Avenue and Aberdeen Street, site of the Thanksgiving fight in front of the Riverton bar. The building used for the bar is a former hardware store.

Following Highway 23 east brings us to Highway 24 and the northbound return to Calgary; there's some stops to make first, however. At Mossleigh, turn west on Highway 547 to the hamlet of Dinton for two Brokeback Mountain scenes: St. Thomas' Anglican Church was used for the wedding of Ennis and Alma, while a nearby field was turned into the drive-in movie lot at which they enjoyed a picture.

Backtrack to Highway 24 and continue north to Carseland, where, at 110 Railway Avenue, you'll find the Blue Bar, an unnamed drinking spot in Brokeback Mountain, where Ennis and Jack share stories. Carseland is also part of the movie's opening sequence: Ennis gets out of the truck (Carseland) and walks down the street (Cowley). Jack then drives up and parks (Cowley). They notice each other (Cowley). Joe drives up (Cowley). After Ennis and Jack leave the trailer (Cowley), they introduce themselves (Cowley) before walking into the bar (Carseland). Considering Cowley is roughly 200 kilometres from Carseland, you get a sense of the lengths directors will go to create the "perfect" sequence of shots, even for a minute or two of the film.

Also filmed here in 1998 was The Hi-Lo Country with Sam Elliott.

Complete your drive north through Cheadle to Highway 1 and head east to Calgary.
