

REGIONAL ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT ALLIANCES (REDA)

Your Regional Connection

Alberta's Regional Economic Development Alliances (REDAs) are regional Economic Development offices that are grassroots-based non-profit organizations comprised of member communities and regional stakeholders that work together to foster business development and prosperity in a defined geographic area, with a general emphasis on rural development. This collaboration and cooperation enables members and stakeholders to undertake projects that they could not necessarily do on their own.

The REDAs are supported and partially funded by Alberta Economic Development and Trade, and the Government of Alberta maintains a close and mutually supportive relationship with them.

The REDAs are known for their ability to leverage funding from numerous sources, due to their strong collaborative nature, and drive investment into emerging industries.

No matter what your economic interest is in Alberta, whether its business investment, tourism, or trade, the regional REDA is an excellent first-point of contact.
